

the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age has increased by 1.2 billion, from 1.1 billion in 1980 to 2.3 billion in 1999. The number of people aged 15 years and over has increased by 1.1 billion, from 1.1 billion in 1980 to 2.2 billion in 1999. The number of people aged 65 years and over has increased by 0.2 billion, from 0.2 billion in 1980 to 0.4 billion in 1999.

There are a number of factors which have contributed to the increase in the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age. One of the main factors is the increase in the number of people who are surviving infancy. In 1980, the number of people who died in infancy was 1.1 million. In 1999, the number of people who died in infancy was 0.6 million.

Another factor is the increase in the number of people who are surviving childhood. In 1980, the number of people who died in childhood was 0.6 million. In 1999, the number of people who died in childhood was 0.3 million.

A third factor is the increase in the number of people who are surviving adulthood. In 1980, the number of people who died in adulthood was 0.3 million. In 1999, the number of people who died in adulthood was 0.1 million.

The increase in the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age is a result of a combination of these factors. The increase in the number of people who are surviving infancy, childhood, and adulthood has all contributed to the increase in the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age.

The increase in the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age is a result of a combination of these factors. The increase in the number of people who are surviving infancy, childhood, and adulthood has all contributed to the increase in the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age.

The increase in the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age is a result of a combination of these factors. The increase in the number of people who are surviving infancy, childhood, and adulthood has all contributed to the increase in the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age.

The increase in the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age is a result of a combination of these factors. The increase in the number of people who are surviving infancy, childhood, and adulthood has all contributed to the increase in the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age.

The increase in the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age is a result of a combination of these factors. The increase in the number of people who are surviving infancy, childhood, and adulthood has all contributed to the increase in the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age.

The increase in the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age is a result of a combination of these factors. The increase in the number of people who are surviving infancy, childhood, and adulthood has all contributed to the increase in the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age.

The increase in the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age is a result of a combination of these factors. The increase in the number of people who are surviving infancy, childhood, and adulthood has all contributed to the increase in the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age.

The increase in the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age is a result of a combination of these factors. The increase in the number of people who are surviving infancy, childhood, and adulthood has all contributed to the increase in the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age.

VIVUS

Everything is clear

